Ballooning Hope's Parachute Falls to Work.

He Drops to Instant Death a Distance of Half a Mile.

He Lands in a Slough With Such Velocity That He Was Driven Twelve Feet Into the Mud—The Body Was Not Recovered For an Hour.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 1.—A thrill of horror ran through the great crowd which gathered at Inver Grove late Sunday afternoon to witness the balloon ascension, when Prof. Edward Hope dropped half a mile to instant death. His badly inflated balloon had gone up a little more than half a mile when it began to descend, and a west wind sent it flying toward the Mississippi river. Hope became alarmed and dropping himself over the edge of the basket, cut the parachute away and started downward. Owing to some defect in the machinery the parachute failed to spread and the professor came down with awful velocity. He landed on his feet in a slough with such velocity that he was driven twelve feet into the mud. His body was not recovered for an hour.

SNOWDEN'S STATEMENT.
The Militia General Says Iams Was Suspended by the Towns Without His Knowledge or Concurrence.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The Herald Saturday morning prints the following letter from Gen. Snowden:

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 27.
To the editor of the Herald: I view your letter of the 26th inst. in light of the fact that I was suspended by the thumbs without my knowledge or concurrence.

I have had no occasion, officially, to approve or disapprove it, and I have not done so. A report of the circumstances after they occurred, was made to me and I was asked what disposition would be made of the man, when I ordered: "Discharge him from the service in disgrace; drum him out of camp and send him home."

You will observe that the manner of sending him off, outside of drumming him out, is not prescribed. I have authority summarily to discharge enlisted men, but no disqualification follows.

Sober-minded people will remember that the punishment inflicted was in the face of revolution, treason and anarchy. Very respectfully,

GEORGE R. SNOWDEN.

Infant Murder Mystery.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 1.—A few minutes after 4 o'clock Saturday morning the dead body of a three-months-old baby was found lying by the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Indianapolis railroad track at Alabama street, in the center of the city. The Shortage Grows.

DEVASTATED.

A Volcano Bursts Forth on Great Sangir Island,

And Village After Village Sinks Out of Sight.

The Earth Opens Into Great Cracks and Everything is Engulfed—The Loss of Life and Property is Said to Be Something Terrible.

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 1.—Without any warning signals, without any sign whatever of impending disturbance, the Gunung Aroo volcano, on Great Sangir island, in the Malay Archipelago, blazed forth on June 7, and within twenty-four hours the whole of the prosperous surrounding country was devastated.

The island is one of a chain of Islands near the Philippines. The first report of the eruption was heard about 6 o'clock in the morning, and for four hours there was one continual stream of fire and ashes. After a slight relaxation a flood of fire again began, continuing two days. The coconut plantations, which covered the whole mountain side, were completely destroyed.

Terrific thunder-storms had followed each earthquake. Whole villages are submerged and cocon and nutmeg plantations everywhere are ruined. In the northern part of the island lava streams were running with terrific force. Among other villages completely obliterated was that of Tokeam, famed for its beauty and wealth.

The loss of life is something frightful, but no accurate estimate of it can yet be made. Some place it as high as 10,000. A thousand bodies have been picked up on the shore and many were found floating in the sea.

The whole island is completely devastated, and, although the violent eruption has ceased, volumes of smoke are rising, accompanied by steam and ashes. The lower land and valleys are covered with lava, which is still pouring down, while cracks in the mountain have opened, emptying volleys of steam, stones and mud.

Property worth millions upon millions is destroyed forever. For many years the inhabitants of Sangir Island, living within the shadows of a dormant crater, had tilled the soil and prospered, their chief industry being the growing of nutmegs, coconuts and grapes, the product being regularly shipped abroad.

Providence, with a climate equalling, if not surpassing, that of Italy, and a soil needing little cultivation makes it profitable. With no political or national disturbances the semi-savage natives were gradually becoming civilized. The villages and towns were well built, and had schools and churches.

When the awful devastation began there was a terrible rumble, a column of ruddy flames shot up from the crater as high in the heavens as the eye could reach, and immediately afterward hot ashes were falling like snow-flakes over the whole country. Dust was flying in all directions, and from the time of the first explosion until 9 o'clock that evening fierce volumes of flame and smoke and showers of large stones belched forth, followed by rain which fell in torrents, bringing down with it the clouds of ashes that were flying through the air.

This continued all night and the whole of the next day. Earthquakes began June 9. Village after village was engulfed, hundreds of people dropping into the great cracks in the earth. The whole country is under a layer of mud, ashes and stones.

Among others who saw the island after the outbreak was Capt. J. Gray, of the steamship Norway, which had been sent with a cargo of rice from Mandanao to relieve the sufferers. He says the whole island, viewed from the westward, presented a soul-sickening appearance. There was no sign of life anywhere. Volumes of smoke could be seen issuing from the volcano, accompanied by fine ashes, which spread like a cloud over the island and fell thickly everywhere.

Small jets of steam, smoke and stones were pouring out from the mountain sides completely covering the lower valleys and lands. The entire topography of the island was changed.
